

The Inadequate Draft

Buffalo News—"Heedless of General Eisenhower's words, Congress has gambled with the national security."

Baltimore Sun—"It appears that some 190,000 men in the Army are going to have Congress to thank for keeping them there."

Atlanta Constitution—"Had Congress been determined to kill the draft, it should have been done far enough in advance for our military men to revise occupation and other policies so as to make for loss of as little face as possible."

Kansas City Star—"Another short term extension which merely preserves the form but not the function of a selective service system would be a blunder equal to that just committed."

New York Times—"Unlike most important questions before Congress, the issue of Selective Service has a definite time limit. We fail to follow the reasoning of those Senators who see no reason now to bring about debating Selective Service and starting the wheels moving toward passage of a considered bill."

Fort Worth Star-Telegram—"The action by Congress on Selective Service was sheer lip service to our foreign and military obligations, not forthrightness in either direction."

Ohio State Journal—"The nub of the peacetime draft question, it seems to us, boils down to the simple principle of whether we are going to support and place faith in the United Nations."

Washington Post—"It is obvious that if the crippling limitations are not removed, the War Department will be forced to raise discharge requirements and keep men in the service for longer periods."

Milwaukee Journal—"The degree to which the House majority sabotaged selective service and the whole military replacement program is now reflected right here in Wisconsin. . . . Local recruiting officers say that enlistments dropped 50 per cent immediately after the House adopted the ban on drafting 18 and 19-year-olds."

Worcester Telegram—"The men who blindly acted to weaken the country's defense will have to be made to see the real meaning of what they have done."

Await Merger Decision

A report of their study of the problem of unification of the services, made at the behest of the President, was submitted to the White House yesterday by Secretaries Patterson and Forrestal. The report was made in the form of a joint letter.

The Secretaries did not go personally to the White House, Secretary Patterson having left for Chicago to attend the Reserve Officers Association convention.

The joint survey was made as the result of a conference held recently at which President Truman talked to the two Secretaries, Admiral Leahy, Admiral Nimitz, General Spaatz, and General Handy, the latter representing General Eisenhower, who at that time was out of town. At that conference, the President told the two services to go thoroughly over all phases of the recommendations he had made to Congress concerning the merger and to reach as complete an agreement as possible. The results of their conference were to be submitted to him in the form of a list of those projects on which they could agree opposed by a list of those upon which they could not reach an agreement. It is presumed that this is the form taken by the joint letter now before the President.

President Truman told his press conference yesterday that he had not yet seen the recommendations. However the two Secretaries are to meet with him at the White House next Tuesday and it is presumed that at that time he will go over their recommendations with them in detail.

President Truman also told his press conference that he has not yet selected an Under Secretary for the Navy because it is difficult to find anyone willing to accept the responsibility and run the risk of being confirmed by the Senate. He added, however, that such an appointment is badly needed.

The Atomic Bomb

Underwater tests and other work preliminary to the first atom bomb test at Bikini atoll have been completed, and location of the target vessels in their pre-assigned moorings is now underway.

Rear Admiral Frank G. Fahrion, advance commander, is supervising all activities at Bikini, where a nine square-mile area was recently cleared to a depth of 45 feet for use as a safe anchorage for target and support vessels of the A-bomb fleet.

Higher Grade on Retirement

The Comptroller General 10 May handed down a decision regarding the retired pay of Navy officers advanced to higher rank upon retirement. Following is the synopsis of the decision:

"A Navy officer who was advanced to the rank of lieutenant commander upon retirement pursuant to the provisions of section 12(k) of the act of 23 June, 1938, as amended, and recalled to active duty in a higher wartime temporary rank, is entitled, upon reverting to an inactive status, to receive retired pay, as provided in section 12(b) of said act, computed on the basis of such higher rank in which he served satisfactorily as determined by the Secretary of the Navy under section 8 of the act of 21 February 1946, with credit for active duty after retirement as authorized by section 15 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942.

"A Lieutenant of the Navy whose only service prior to 12 November 1918, was that of a midshipman at the Naval Academy may not be regarded as having 'served in the Navy or Naval Reserve forces prior to 12 November, 1918,' within the meaning of section 12(k) of the act of 23 June, 1938, as amended, so as to be entitled thereunder, upon retirement, to advancement to the grade of lieutenant commander on the retired list with the retired pay of that grade.

"A Navy officer who, immediately prior to service as a midshipman, had enlisted service during a period prior to 12 November, 1918, is to be regarded as an officer who 'served in any capacity as a member of the military or naval forces of the United States prior to 12 November, 1918,' within the meaning of section 15, paragraph four, of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, so as to be entitled thereunder, upon voluntary retirement under section 12(e) of act of 23 June, 1938, to retired pay at the rate of 75 percent of his active duty pay at the time of retirement."

Proposes Limitation of Arms

Secretary of State Byrnes told the House Foreign Affairs Committee 29 May that the United States intends to work for the limitation of armaments by all nations.

Speaking at a hearing on a measure proposed 6 May by President Truman providing for the transfer of arms to other American republics, Secretary Byrnes said that such a transfer would not result in an arms race, but would provide the Western Hemisphere countries with necessary weapons for defense against attack.

"It is the purpose of our foreign policy," Secretary Byrnes said, "to work for a limitation of armaments in the light of requirements for the maintenance of internal order and of international peace and security."

Probationary Commissions

New officers of the Regular Army may be decommissioned and discharged from the Army under War Department Circular 152. Provisions are applicable to every officer appointed in the Regular Army without regard to length of service performed as a Reserve, National Guard, or AUS officer prior to acceptance of commission in the Regular Army.

The Secretary of War will revoke the commission of any officer whose conduct and performance of duty is such as not to justify his retention, or whose retention is not justifiable for other good and sufficient reasons.

Every person being originally commissioned in the Regular Army will be required to execute a personal history statement prior to taking oath of office.

After 1 July 1949, the marriage of a second lieutenant will be cause for revocation of a commission.

Nominations

President Truman 31 May nominated Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, his military aide, to be a Major General, AUS.

Rear Adm. Robert B. Carney, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations, was nominated to be Vice Admiral.

Memorial Day Tributes

In a Memorial Day announcement General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, paid tribute to the war dead of the AGF.

"This war exacted a heavy toll on all elements of the forces in the combat zones," General Devers said, "but in none of the arms and services was the casualty rate so terrifically high as it was among my comrades in the ground forces."

A memorial service for military chaplains was held 29 May at the Chaplains' Cenotaph, Arlington National Cemetery.

The program was opened with invocation by Ch. (Capt.) Charles J. Murphy, of the Military District of Washington, Ch. (Col.) Walter B. Zimmerman, of the Office of the Chief of Chaplains, delivered an address, and Ch. (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller, Chief of Chaplains, placed a wreath. The program was concluded with benediction by Ch. (Maj.) Ralph H. Blumenthal, of the Office of the Chief of Chaplains.

Secretary Praises Artillery

Secretary of War Patterson, speaking at the Commencement Exercises of the Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., 30 May, praised the sound doctrine, thorough training and bravery which contributed to our Artillery superiority in the war.

"The doctrine developed here at Fort Sill," Secretary Patterson said, "with emphasis on flexibility, control and concentration, stood the test of combat. The training from the top down, left nothing to chance. The artilleryman always knew their jobs. The weapons and ammunition spoke with an authority never known in the Army in any previous war."

Navy Nominations

The President has sent the following nominations to the Senate for appointment in the Regular Navy:

To be an Ensign Assistant Paymaster William P. Ferguson, USN.

Following Line officers to be Assistant Paymasters with the rank of Lt. (jg): William J. Bush, and James H. Elsom.

Following Line officers to be Assistant Paymasters with the rank of Ensign: Thomas C. Cain, Jr., William C. Croft, Joseph A. Fernald, John W. Hirst, and Frank H. McDonald.

Following Naval Reserve officers to be Ensigns in the Navy: William L. Landreth and Charles F. Weiss.

Travel of Dependent

The Comptroller General decided 10 May that an Army officer's wife who was an officer in the Army Nurse Corps at the time she performed travel incident to her husband's permanent change of station may not be regarded as a dependent within the meaning of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942 so as to be entitled to transportation at Government expense.

The decision was made in a claim submitted by Maj. John H. Holliday for reimbursement of commercial cost of transportation of his wife from Seattle, Wash., to Washington, D. C. The wife was a 1st Lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, and was located at Camp Kilmer, N. J., when the officer received orders returning him to the United States from overseas.

Remount Service to Agr. Dept.

Final action has not yet been taken on the War Department's recommendation that the Army Remount Service, for many years part of the Quartermaster Corps, be transferred to the Department of Agriculture. The recommendation is now being studied by the Bureau of the Budget as part of the President's reorganization program.

The transfer was recommended in view of the virtual abandonment of the use of horses and mules by the Army. Three small units are tentatively slated for retention.

Sec. Patterson Lauds 1st Div.

Secretary of War Patterson, speaking 28 May at the Cantigny Day Dinner of the First Division Society of Washington, D. C., warned that there is danger of repeating the mistakes made following World War I, and praised in glowing terms the record of the First Division.

"Not even the realistic mind of the military analyst," he said, "can escape the glamour of the First Infantry Division or ignore its glory. Greatness of traditions spurred its men to further greatness of achievement." Other speakers included Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, Maj. Gen. Terry Allen and Maj. Gen. C. R. Huebner.

Navy Officers Retained

The fourth, fifth and sixth of a series of lists of Navy officers selected for retention on active duty until 1 July 1947 are announced in Alnavs 269, 270, and 271.

In addition, Alnav 259 asked for requests for retention of Reserve Officers in aerological duties until 1 July 1947 or a specific date of their own choice after 30 Aug. 1946.

Developing Body Armor

Army Ordnance research technicians are striving to perfect flexible body armor which will give foot soldiers the same protection afforded Army Air Forces personnel during the war, according to an announcement made this week by Maj. Gen. Everett S. Hughes, Chief of Ordnance.

six tracts of lands in the Monterey area which was obtained in contemplation of the relocation of the present school, and by its terms this option will expire 'in no event later than 1 January 1947.' While the authorization of the whole project included by the proposed bill is earnestly recommended, in any event it is deemed of vital importance that funds be approved for the purchase of the land so that the opportunity to purchase the site will not lapse with the option. This course of action would enable the Navy Department to secure title to this property, peculiarly suited to the establishment of the School and would permit the building of the necessary collateral facilities as funds become available for the purpose in the future. In line with this reasoning is the plan to utilize until replacement at a later date, the facilities already in existence on the site for the training of a minimum of 500 students. The advisability of obtaining the land now covered by the option cannot be over emphasized.

"The ultimate cost to the Government of the enactment of this proposed legislation would be $25,750,000."

The Bureau of the Budget did not object to the submission of the bill but stated, "This advice should not be construed as involving any commitment with respect to the amount of appropriation authorized for this purpose."

Handling of Liquor

The serving and storing of liquor at Army posts, camps and stations is explained and current regulations clarified in a memorandum sent 24 May by the War Department to all commanders within the United States.

Following is the text of the memorandum:

1. The following Act of Congress is still in effect:

Section 35, Act of 2 February 1901 (31 Stat. 758; 10 U. S. C. 1350; M. L. 1939, sec. 319), provides as follows:

The sale or dealing in beer, wine, or any intoxicating liquors by any person in any post exchange or canteen or Army transport, or upon any premises used for military purposes by the United States, is hereby prohibited. The Secretary of War is hereby directed to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect.

2. The Act of 22 March 1933 (48 Stat. 10) states that beer, lager beer, ale, porter, wine, or other similar fermented malts or vinous liquor containing not more than 3.2 per centum of alcohol by weight, are not intoxicating. Beer and wine of an alcoholic content not in excess of 3.2 per centum by weight may be sold or dealt in by Army exchanges, clubs, canteens, aboard Army transports, and upon other premises used for military purposes by the United States.

3. The sale or dealing in intoxicating liquors (including beer, wine, or other malts or vinous beverages containing an alcoholic content in excess of 3.2 per centum by weight), regardless of what the transaction is called or how it is effectuated, is prohibited if title to such intoxicating beverage passes or changes upon any premises used for military purposes by the United States.

4. Purchase of intoxicating liquors upon behalf of any person, including a member, by a club or mess or by any official or employee thereof, or the transportation of such liquors to military reservations by a club or mess or by any official or employee thereof is prohibited, even though the purchase is made and the transportation is performed by the club or mess or its official or employee as agent of the person and on his behalf, and regardless of whether any benefit accrues to the club or mess from the transaction, either directly or indirectly.

5. The storage of intoxicating liquors acquired elsewhere, by the individual owner thereof in an authorized club or mess (not including organizational messes, service clubs, or other clubs, the operations of which are financed by appropriated funds), and the service of drinks therefrom to the owner or to his guests present with the owner, by club or mess attendants, and where the club or mess charges only for the nonalcoholic ingredients furnished, will be permitted. A person under the age of 21 will not be served intoxicating liquor at any time.

6. The dispensing of intoxicating liquors in any club or mess other than provided for in paragraph 5 is forbidden. This includes the dispensing of intoxicating liquors on a chit system by which a member pays only for what he consumes out of an undivided common stock, or on any system by which the nominal sale is a sale of coupons but the coupons are used to pay for drinks.

7. The use of intoxicating liquors in any manner in organizational messes, dayrooms, offices, barracks, service clubs, or in any club the operations of which are financed by appropriated funds, is expressly forbidden.

8. Special instructions have already been issued to theater commanders overseas concerning the sale and consumption of intoxicating liquors. The above instructions therefore apply only within the continental limits of the United States (excluding Alaska).

USMA For Post-Graduate Work

If Representative Thomason, Texas, has his way, the U. S. Military Academy will become a postgraduate school for officers trained in civilian colleges and universities having Reserve Officers Training Corps units.

At an informative session of the House Military Committee this week, while representatives of the War Department were unfolding the tentative plans for post-war ROTC training, Representative Thomason (Tex.) ranking Democrat on the committee, said, "The War Department should figure on new policies for West Point—perhaps make it a post-graduate institution. It should not require students to take subjects like English and French that can be taken in any college. West Point is outmoded and outdated."

Representative Martin, Iowa, gave expression to the same idea and said "The War Department must coordinate West Point with the ROTC program."

The idea was evoked by admission that the greatest number of officers for the postwar Army must come from sources other than West Point. Representative Sparkman went so far as to ask "What justification is there for continuing West Point if so many officers are to be gained from other sources?"

Continuing, Representative Sparkman said "The cream of the crop should be taken from the ROTC and other sources and sent through West Point as a post-graduate school."

In justifying the continued use of the U. S. Military Academy, Brig. Gen. J. S. Bradley, G-3, W. D., the chief War Department witness on the ROTC plan, said it is his personal view that "West Point graduates would leave the officer personnel."

Asking whether it might not be possible to have ROTC and NROTC units in the same college, Representative Elston, Ohio, said that to make that possible "is another reason for having a coordinated command. Expense could be avoided if there were a coordinated command and so coordination among ground, sea, and air."

In reply, General Bradley said there "might well be ROTC and NROTC training in the same college for the first two years but after that there would have to be specialization."

In outlining the War Department plan for the ROTC, General Bradley stated that it is desired to establish 600 additional units in the various types of institutions. He announced that 95 are being used in civilian schools, 40 in military schools, 4 in Military Institutes, and 8 in Military Colleges. Part of the objective will be to increase the number of units at similar institutions and to add to them Junior Colleges, new locale for such units. Legislative authority will have to be secured for the desired expansion, General Bradley pointed out.

According to the General, the aim will be to "raise the training to wartime level and improve the product."

General Bradley stated that the plan outlined at the meeting of the Military Committee was intended to be preliminary and informative only, and that a definite War Department proposal, with a suggested bill, will be presented later.

Additional officers giving information at the session of the committee were Col. E. A. Chazal, Col. J. L. Gibney, Lt. Col. F. X. Leary, all attached to G-3, and Col. George Barker of the Special Planning Division.

Guam Base Action Delayed

Action on H. R. 6547, a bill to authorize the acquisition of land for the expansion of the Naval Base on Guam, has been delayed by the House Naval Committee after a hearing held this week.

Action will be deferred until (1) the Navy Department provides the committee with a breakdown of the planned installations; (2) the legislative Congress of Guam records and reports its attitude toward the bill; (3) the Bureau of Personnel provides the committee with a list of Naval and Marine Corps personnel, discharged on the Island of Guam, who have remained there and are charged with having acquired monopolies in various lines of business there.

Information carried in the newspapers and confirmed by a letter received by Representative Grant, Ind., a member of the Naval Committee, resulted in the committee member requesting, on 25 April, from the Chief of the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Vice Adm. Louis B. Denfeld, a list of personnel discharged on Guam, and a record of franchises or other forms of business permits granted to these men by the Island Command with a schedule.

Personnel, Vice Adm. Louis B. Denfeld, on 2 May, promised the information would be sent by the commandant, Naval Operating Base, Guam.

Because of the non-arrival of this information up to 29 May, the supposed involvement of former Navy and Marine Corps personnel in business dealings on Guam led to its being one of the reasons for delay in action on the legislation.

Rear Admiral H. W. Smith, of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, informed the committee that it is planned to purchase 26,000 acres at an average cost of $35 an acre, and to lease 22,000 acres at a cost of $30,000 a year, the latter to be effective until a decision is arrived at as to whether or not purchase of this leased land will be necessary. Some of the land purchased would be given in exchange for acreage belonging to natives and in use by the Navy.

According to Admiral Smith, the Island of Guam covers 225 square miles, 100 of which is now owned by the United States. The proposed bill provides for the addition of 40 square miles to the holdings of the United States.

According to Admiral Smith, installations on Guam would include the Operating Base, a Ship Repair Base, Supply, Submarine, and Aviation Bases, Land Airfields, a Medical Center, Housing for personnel, and Headquarters for the Command of the Marianas.

In reply to questions, Admiral Smith stated that the fortification of Guam is an accomplished fact, and that the 22,000 acres to be leased, with an option to purchase, are being used for combat training.

Walter Reed Ceremonies

Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, Jr., commanding general Army Medical Center, gave the principal address at Memorial Day services 30 May in the formal gardens at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

The services were opened with a band selection by the 304th ASF Band, followed by the invocation by Chaplain W. B. Sharp and a patriotic hymn by the assembly. Col. Robert B. Skinner read the General Order establishing Memorial Day.

Capt. George Knaedler sang the "Recessional," followed by prayers by Chaplain Eugene B. Frein, and the playing of taps. Rabbi Samuel Berkowitz gave the benediction.

General Beach's address was as follows:

"We are not assembled here today to indulge in any lengthy declarations or orations. Out of propriety, any extensive ceremony on this occasion should be reserved for the far flung lands where our fallen comrades are interred. Our activities here today should remain one of thoughtful commemoration.

"The late Louis D. Brandeis in speaking of the men who secured our independence almost three centuries ago said, 'they believed liberty to be the secret of happiness and courage to be the secret of liberty.'

"This statement has been very clearly epitomized by the men in our Armed Forces who have fought for our country in every war, and particularly the last World War. The same independence has been repurchased by the men who knew their duty and were not found wanting in virtue and courage.

"These men believed that freedom to think and to speak as you think were synonymous with the creed of 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'

"Many have paid the supreme sacrifice for that freedom, while others remain here today carrying the effects of physical and mental anguish as symbols of our national courage and heritage.

"In commemoration of their patriotism, we are gathered here today to pay tribute to their courage and love of country. We wish to testify to their valor by an unwritten record of the mind, which will outlive any monument that might be erected in their honor.

"Let us emulate the valor of these men in placing their happiness in liberty and engaging our future with that same determination of purpose."

Navy Fleet Plans

Although the Navy Appropriations Bill contemplates 965 major warships for 1947 instead of 1079 listed in original Navy plans, Post War Plan No. 2 represents reductions primarily in the ready reserve and inactive fleets, and leaves active post-war fleets of 291 of the most modern and up-to-date ships in the world.

"In making the cuts we tried to favor the effective operating fleet as much as possible, and to squeeze down the shore establishments as much as possible in comparison with the original plan," it was explained by Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations before the House Appropriations Committee considering funds for the Navy for the next fiscal year.

The cut from Plan No. 1 to Plan No. 2 means reductions in almost all classes of ships, but in small numbers. Shown below are numbers of ships by classes to be maintained in active, operating fleets, the reductions in active ships from Plan No. 1, and the total reductions in ships of the Navy including the ready reserve and inactive fleets.

Type (Active)	Reduction
	From Under Plan 2	From Plan No. 1
Battleships (4)	0	— 2
Heavy cruisers (8)	0	— 4
Light cruisers (21)	+ 1	— 4
Large carriers (3)	0	0
Essex carriers (9)	— 1	+ 1
Escort carriers (10)	— 3	— 13
Destroyers (126)	— 9	— 13
Destroyer escorts (30)	— 6	— 60
Submarines (80)	— 10	— 13

The addition of one cruiser to the active fleets is to be one of the new anti-aircraft cruisers, probably one as yet uncompleted.

Arming the Philippines

Declaring that the responsibility of the United States toward the Philippines will not end with independence, Secretary of State Byrnes this week told Congress that "Military and naval bases will be maintained by the United States in the Islands in agreement with the Government of the Philippines and certain garrisons of United States troops will be required."

Secretary Byrnes statement was made in transmitting the draft of a proposed bill authorizing the President to transfer arms to the Philippines, to help train their forces and generally to "provide military assistance to the Republic of the Philippines in establishing and maintaining national security and to form a basis for participation by that government in such defensive military operations as the future may require."

In his letter Mr. Byrnes said:

"Upon attaining independence the Government of the Philippines will of necessity be required to maintain a military establishment to provide for the re-establishment and maintenance of national security and to permit the training of a reserve force sufficient to enable that Government to participate in such defensive military operations as the future may require.

"Current estimates by the Philippine Commonwealth authorities and United States representatives indicate that the initial strength of the Philippine armed forces required for this purpose will be, during the first year of Philippine Independence, between 34,000 and 40,000 principally ground and service troops and including a small air force and a naval detachment operating for the purpose of coastal security and patrol.

"The logical source of arms and equipment for this force is from the United States.

"The financial capabilities of the Philippine Government for the maintenance of armed forces cannot at this time be definitely determined but considered estimates as mentioned above indicate that after the first year of independence the armed forces may be reduced from the initial strength to approximately 12,500 regular troops plus an annual increment of 12,000 trainees.

"Concurrently with this program of training, a reserve force of the Philippine Army will be established for which basic arms and equipment would be provided by the United States.

"The responsibility of the United States toward the Philippines will not be terminated with the establishment of an independent government. Military and naval bases will be maintained by the United States in the Islands in agreement with the Government of the Philippines and certain garrisons of United States troops will be required. The establishment of an efficient Philippine Army will materially reduce the size of postwar garrisons of United States troops.

"I firmly believe that the national interest, our duty to the people of the Philippines, and considerations of good conscience require that the United States continue to provide military assistance to the Republic of the Philippines, to permit that nation in post independence status to organize and maintain a military force for national security and defense.

"The proposed legislation is in conformity with the expressed opinions of the Secretaries of War and Navy."

Navy Has New Mooring Method

A new pile-and-chain arrangement developed and tested by the Bureau of Yards and Docks permits quick and safe mooring of ships of all sizes against winds of high velocity.

In the process, anchor details pick up mooring buoys marking the ends of 90-foot lengths of two-inch chain secured at the bottom to steel piles driven 40 to 50 feet into the ground, and bend on their own chain. Ships may be moored fore-and-aft or by the bow only, depending on spacing of the piles and pilot rules covering the anchorage.

Ships moored in this fashion will safely withstand wind and currents because, Navy experts say, the pile-and-chain anchorage has been pre-tested to withstand a horizontal load of 200,000 pounds.

The new arrangement is now in use for berthing inactivated ships and surplus ships awaiting disposition at Charleston, S. C., Green Cove Springs, Fla., and Suisan Bay, San Francisco.

USNR Officers Assoc.

The U. S. Naval Reserve Officers Association was reactivated in May by action of its Executive Council and Board of Directors, and will hold its first national convention since 1940 during the last two weeks of October.

The President, Comdr. Robert A. Van Voorhis of Jersey City N. J., was empowered to arrange for the opening of a business office in Washington, D. C., and to appoint a National Legislative Counsel to engage in such activities as the President and Association may direct.

The President and other officers elected in 1940 agreed to continue in office on an interim basis until the next annual convention at a place yet to be chosen. This reactivation was recommended by the Executive Council and approved by the Directors at their meeting in New York in mid-May. They ruled the following officers eligible for active membership in the Association:

Marine Corps Reserve, Waves, Women's Reserve of the Marine Corps, Reserve Nurse Corps, Spars, and the Regular Coast Guard Reserve, in addition to male Naval Reserve officers.

The following were present at the meeting in New York:

Comdr. R. A. Van Voorhis, president; Capt. G. W. Akers and Comdr. W. R. Cole, vice presidents; Capt. N. W. Pick-

N. A. Civilian Teachers Pay

Believing that civilian faculty members at the Naval Academy should have retirement pay comparable to benefits received by other civilian Government employees, the Navy Department has requested the enactment of legislation introduced by Senator Walsh, Mass.

The bill would further amend existing law to bring the retirement annuities of Naval Academy civilian teachers retired for disability into line with what civil service employees of comparable position receive, and will grant them the same choice of actuarially equivalent retirement annuities as are now allowed under the Civil Service Retirement Act.

Academy Sports

Athletes of the U. S. Naval Academy won an almost clean sweep in their annual spring contests with Army 25 May, winning in four of five sports and capturing two national championships.

The Navy track team beat Army to win the IC4A championships for the third successive year, and the lacrosse team came from behind to win, 12-10, for a mythical national title.

In addition, the Navy baseball team maintained its record of only one defeat for the season, by North Carolina, in winning by 11-to-5.

Only in tennis was Army able to win, 5-to-4.

The golf matches were swept by Navy, 7-2.

U. S. COAST GUARD

ASSISTANT Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley, Jr., will deliver the commencement address to the Class of 1947 at the 61st graduation exercises of the Coast Guard Academy on 5 June.

Admiral Joseph Farley, Commandant, will also speak at the exercises, and, according to custom, will present the graduates with their commissions as Ensigns. Rear Admiral James Pine, superintendent of the Academy, will present the Bachelor of Science degrees and also address the class.

The Class of '47 will be the largest ever to graduate from the Coast Guard Academy, numbering 102. It will also be the last to graduate under the accelerated wartime three-year program.

The history of the Coast Guard during World War II is now being written, and is appearing chapter by chapter in a series of preliminary monographs (multilithed) which are being distributed as written to key service personnel for correction, criticism and comments.

When the complete series of the 31 "Coast Guard at War" historical monographs is completed about 1 July 1947, a final edition, printed and bound, with photographs, maps and charts, will be offered to the public.

Many of the historical monographs yet to be written are waiting for the "first" narratives on each of the 30 activities now being written in the Districts by District historical writers appointed under instructions issued in March, 1945. These cover the period from 1939 to 1945 as well as an overall District history dating from the period immediately following World War I.

The whole history program is under the general supervision of the Chief of the Public Information Division and the immediate supervision of Lt. Comdr. F. R. Eldridge, USCGR (T) of the Historical Section of that Division.

Demobilization

It is expected that all separation centers will be closed by 10 June except in the Third, Eighth, Ninth and Twelfth Districts, which will be closed, and Reserve personnel separated prior to 30 June.

Vessels authorized to retain Reserve personnel after 22 May were specially designated by Headquarters, and include only transports and in some cases vessels being moved to de-commissioning ports or home districts. SPARS were to have been separated by 22 May.

Aids to Navigation

The Coast and Geodetic Survey, the government agency responsible for publishing charts and other hydrographic data of the United States and its possessions, began a survey this month of waterways on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Results will be used to bring Coast Pilots up-to-date for these regions.

On the survey ship Farris, the survey began at Norfolk, and will proceed north in Chesapeake and Delaware Bays, the New Jersey intracoastal waterway, and thence along the east coast to New York. In autumn, the Farris will return to Norfolk and work south along the coast and through the intracoastal waterway to Key West. Next spring the ship will work up the Gulf coast and through the Gulf intracoastal waterway to Brownsville, Texas.

Search for Missing

Searches for Army and Navy personnel who became missing or missing in action are continuing throughout the world. However, reports of search activity to date indicate there remains little or no possibility of finding any such personnel alive, except a few missing less than 60 days or a few believed to be absenting themselves without authority, the War and Navy Departments said this week.

Virtually all persons who are now officially recorded as missing or missing in action will continue to be so recorded until 12 months have expired from the date of inception of the missing status, or until conclusive evidence of death or of some other status is received, as required by a Federal statute.

The cases of all personnel who have been missing over a year, and who have not yet been officially presumed dead, are under review in the War Department and it is anticipated that all action to make presumptive death findings will be completed shortly. All Naval personnel who have been missing over one year have already been presumed dead.

The awards were made at ceremonies marking the dedication of the newly-completed synthetic training building named the "Pavilhao Capitao Van Ness" in recognition of Mr. Van Ness' assistance to the Brazilian Air Force since June, 1944, in planning synthetic training programs and in designing the new center.

"Technical knowledge plus skill of the highest order is required of men and officers to cope with the ever growing complications of modern weapons."—VICE ADMIRAL LOUIS E. DENFIELD.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Maintenance in accordance with professional studies of our national needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized and trained to utilize and employ materials of war developed by continuing Scientific research, and backed by Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture of such materials.
2. Reconstruction of National Guard and Reserve components federally aided and encouraged to maximum efficiency, and effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and universal military training.
3. Increase in active and retired pay and allowances to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American standards of living, and protection of such pay from reduction through income taxes.
4. Institution of orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks, to prevent future stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
5. Continuance and expansion of service schools, including the Army and Navy Staff College, attendance of which shall be open to National Guard and Reserve Officers.
6. Suitable rank and retirement benefits for former enlisted personnel and warrant officers who served as commissioned officers during the war.
7. Grant of the same rights and benefits to those who elect to remain in the Services as will be enjoyed by the discharged veterans.
8. Upward revision of pension scales to assure Service widows and dependents a living income.
9. Compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
10. Maintenance of stock piles of strategic materials.

OUT of the Doolittle Board's investigation of the so-called "Caste System" in the Army has come recommendations reemphasizing many improvements long recognized as desirable for the military establishment plus a recognition of the fact that "maintenance of control and discipline" are "essential to the success of any military operation." Improved pay scales and retirement systems for both commissioned and enlisted personnel were recommended as tending "to insure the security and dignity of all Army personnel" and eliminating "many of the inequities which now exist." These are vital points and should be heeded promptly by Congress which has before it bills treating of both subjects. A joint study on Service pay resulted early in this year in recommendations being submitted to both Houses for a twenty per cent increase in pay and allowances for all the Armed Forces, commissioned and enlisted, active and retired. The House subsequently passed a measure giving some graduated increases in enlisted grades but cutting down those for the officers. In the Senate the Military Affairs Committee reported out the joint Department bill together with three other pay increase measures, the idea being to get the entire subject before the Senate. However, these measures have not yet been brought up on the floor for consideration. Both Houses also have in their Military Committees bills proposed by the War Department providing for retirement system including the privilege of retiring former enlisted men in their highest commissioned rank. But no action has been taken. The House did pass a measure extending more liberalized retirement benefits to enlisted personnel of both the Army and Navy, including a system of 16-year retirement. Unfortunately this measure is tied up in the Senate Military Committee because the Services do not agree—that is the Navy wants the bill and the War Department is non-committal. Now that the latest board has stressed the importance of improving pay and retirement benefits for the improvement of Service morale and efficiency there is more evidence of the necessity of Congress getting busy and passing these important measures.

THE speed and efficiency with which the Military and Naval Services were prepared to give aid to the nation's crippled transportation systems and, if necessary, to take over and operate the strike-bound railroads again demonstrated last week end how great an asset such capable organizations can be to the Nation in peacetime disasters as well as in the catastrophe of war. Immediately with the stoppage of the railroads both Services trimmed down their own transportation requirements and expanded their own transportation systems so as to leave a surplus for the Nation's use. All unnecessary flight operations, including training, were suspended by the Navy, and similar action taken by the Army, so as to free facilities and fuel for other uses. The Army's Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service were authorized by the Post Office Department to carry first class mail. Their ground facilities provided emergency service to commercial air carriers in order that their work might be speeded. Looking forward to the possibility that they might be called upon to operate the railroads, both Services surveyed their personnel for qualified railroad men. The Navy and Marine Corps reported the availability of 8,510 officers and enlisted men with railroad experience, including 684 conductors, 678 trainmen, 552 engineers, 2,546 brakemen, and 4,060 firemen. Many thousands, too, were located by the Army. Provisions also were made to recall Reserve officers and enlisted Reservists to active duty and to accept voluntary emergency enlistments of men eligible. Arrangements also were made whereby the Office of Defense Transportation could request the War Department to furnish protection for persons employed by or seeking employment with seized transportation systems. If called upon the Army was prepared to furnish protection for the system and furnish equipment and manpower to carry out operation under the seizure. Thus, the Armed Forces were ready to provide aid and relief by helping in the movement of mail, vital foodstuffs and other critical supplies. In other disasters, floods, fires, wrecks, etc., the great military and naval organizations have shown the Nation that they can be instruments of protection in peace as well as in war.

AAF Graduate Education Board

In order to carry out the Army Air Forces Graduate Educational Program most effectively within the policy of the War Department's post-war educational plan, an AAF Graduate Education Board of officers has been appointed.

The board comprising six officers from the Air Staff, is headed by Brig. Gen. Edward H. Alexander, Chief of the Training Division, in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Operations and Training Operations will act as the implementing and coordinating agency in AAF headquarters to carry out the plans and policies established by the board.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Deputy Chief of Air Staff for Research and Development, will include in the program all fields of education required to meet the scientific needs of the Air Force for projected research and development.

The board will plan, organize, and establish policies for the AAF Graduate Educational Program. It will determine the number of officers to be given graduate training yearly and establish the qualifications required of student candidates. It will select graduate fields of particular value in the future of AAF requirements, and will maintain close liaison with other major command educational boards of the War Department.

RAF Squadron to Visit U. S.

The Army Air Forces announced this week that the British Royal Air Force has accepted an invitation for one of its veteran bomber squadrons to visit the United States as guests of the AAF to participate in a program of special events commemorating Air Forces Day, 1 Aug.

The unit selected to represent the RAF is No. 35 squadron of Bomber Command, a squadron of Lancasters commanded by Wing Commander A. J. L. Craig. The officer in charge of the operation will be Group Captain R. C. M. Collard. The Lancasters will leave England for Mitchel Field, N. Y., about the first week in July in flights of four.

Air Communications Officer

Brig. Gen. Francis L. Ankenbrandt has been appointed Air Communications Officer of the Army Air Forces.

General Akenbrandt has been deputy to Maj. Gen. Harold M. McClelland, recently transferred to Langley Field, Va., as commanding general of the Air Transport Command's Air Communications Service.

As Air Communications Officer of the AAF he will determine and establish the overall policies, plans and programs of the AAF communications and military air traffic service activities. He also will direct and supervise all communications organizations under the direction of the AAF Commander, exercise monetary control on all matters relating to AAF communications, serve as special technical adviser on communications matters, and act as AAF representative on the Combined and Joint Communications Board.

General Ankenbrandt was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1926. In September 1945 he went to Japan to help establish advance headquarters for the Strategic Air Forces, later returning to the United States to become Deputy Air Communications Officer.

B-29s Set New Records

Two record-making flights have been made recently at Guam and three other flights will be made in an attempt to set further records.

Flying General James H. Doolittle's Superfortress "Challenger," Capt. Arthur H. Pearson, Eighth Air Force, established the initial record 8 May when he flew the B-29 to an altitude of 39,360 feet with a 22,000-pound bomb load. Co-pilot was Lt. Vernon L. Dalbey; flight engineer, Lt. Robert S. Strasburg; navigator, Lt. Irvin F. Bork. Crew members included Cpl. John T. Collins and Cpl. Joseph Friedberg.

Two days later Col. Beverly H. Warren of PACUSA piloted the same aircraft to an altitude of 37,400 feet with a bomb load of approximately 34,000 pounds, establishing a new record in that weight class and smashing a record that had existed since 1939 when Maj. C. V. Haynes attained 6,562 feet with a payload of 31,162 pounds in the AAF experimental B-15.

Air Demonstration at USMA

Tactical air problems, a glider snatch-pickup, mass parachute jump, and other demonstrations by the Tactical Air Command's Third Air Force (Troop Carrier) will be given at the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., 6 and 7 June, for the benefit of graduating cadets.

In making the announcement, Third Air Force (Troop Carrier) headquarters said that 20 aircraft of the 50th Troop Carrier Wing will be used in making the demonstrations. This will include 12 C-46s, two C-47s, two C-82s, 12 CG-4A gliders and one CG-10 glider.

Fighter planes and medium bombers of other Air Forces in the Tactical Air Command will also take part, simulating pre-invasion bombing and strafing tactics in cooperation with Troop Carrier forces.

Observe NC-4 Crossing

The twenty-seventh anniversary of the first successful trans-Atlantic crossing by airplane, the Navy's NC-4, was observed 27 May with dedication at Lisbon, Portugal, of a plaque commemorating the flight and honoring its pilot, Rear Adm. A. C. Read, USN-Ret.

The flight in 1919 began with three planes, the NC-1, NC-3 and NC-4, which left 6 May 1919 from Long Island to Plymouth, England, via Newfoundland, the Azores and Lisbon. Vice Admiral (then Lt. Comdr.) P. N. L. Bellinger was commanding officer, and Admiral (then Lt. Comdr.) Marc A. Mitscher was pilot of the NC-1; Admiral (then Comdr.) John H. Towers was commanding officer and Captain (then Comdr.) H. C. Richardson pilot of the NC-3, and Rear Admiral (then Lt. Comdr.) Read was both commanding officer and pilot of the NC-4. Sixty-eight destroyers were assigned to mark the route, and battleships were stationed every 400 miles.

AAF Observes Memorial Day

Memorial Day, 30 May, was observed as a holiday by Army Air Forces installations throughout the United States.

The day in most AAF commands was marked only by appropriate services at post chapels. In several areas AAF aircraft took part in ceremonies, and some AAF bases provided troop detachments to serve as honor guards for parades. General officers spoke at celebrations in several cities.

Three B-29s dropped flowers from low altitudes as part of a ceremony at the Arlington, Va., National Cemetery. AAF aircraft dropped flowers at ceremonies in several other cities, including St. Louis, Missouri, and Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—In pursuit of President Truman's recently announced policy for a close integration of all Pan-American military and naval establishments, for a unified defense of the Americas, Admiral Nimitz and General Eisenhower this past week appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee in behalf of a bill which would provide for that integration. Specifically, it would authorize the transfer of American naval vessels and divers military equipment to other nations of the western hemisphere, and provide for intelligent training in their use. The aim is not to add to the armament total, but to substitute uniformity for confusion in Pan-American armaments and training, so that coordination of effort could be swift and effective. Admiral Nimitz informed the committee that in such a plan lay the hope for a series of all-American task forces ready to maintain continental defense on the sea approaches to this continent. It would be achieved without reduction of our present main fleet, through use of the large surplus of modern vessels now on our hands, and it would get rid of existing obsolescent vessels in South American hands to the advantage of the hemisphere's defense potential. The program is one in which the State, War and Navy departments are in hearty accord. It is the outgrowth of patient work by a great many minds, and particularly of that performed by the Inter-American Defense Board, upon which General Stanley D. Embick served for a long time, and Generals Drum and Ridgway for shorter periods. It recognizes the folly of a joint defense built up solely on good will and relying upon unorganized or unrelated implements of defense. It sets out therefore to create, by general consent of all the nations of this hemisphere, a harmonious system of defense in the tested American pattern, a uniform arming and the uniform training which goes with it. It is a pursuit of the Monroe Doctrine in a form which is practical as well as ideal. It is directly in line with the Pan-American agreement of Chapultepec, which aims at the maintenance of integrity for all American nations, and a determined joint effort to insure it. It scrupulously avoids interferences of one nation in another's internal affairs, and thus marks one more much-needed step toward prompt and complete elimination of existing bad feeling. It is a recognition that, however successful may be this country's efforts to cooperate with all other nations of the world, an essential prelude to world-cooperation is a working cooperation of all the peoples in our own hemisphere.

Across the Atlantic this week there has been no comparable progress in world unity, it must be admitted. Secretary of State Byrnes' report of last week on the negotiations at Paris, supported by Senator Vandenberg's remarks, brought from Foreign Minister Molotov an extended statement of Russia's position on some of the points in dispute. It was not a soft answer. It questioned the accuracy of Mr. Byrnes' remarks about an apparent shift of opinion in Moscow with regard to the American plan for assuring world security so far as post-war Germany is concerned, and promptly brought from Mr. Byrnes a calm, clear recital of the events which justified his original remarks. The Soviet Foreign Office chief also stressed the frequency of agreement of American and British views at the Paris meeting, and held that this established the existence of an "anti-Soviet bloc," rather than a common reluctance, on the part of the western powers, to yield to insistent Soviet demands. It cannot be said that either statement appears to have convinced the opposition. Nor, unhappily, can it be said that these differences, continuing for so long after the various ministers' departure from Paris, augur well for harmony at the scheduled resumption of discussions on 15 June. There still is profound hope for a greater degree of harmony than May provided, and a rather desperate sort of belief that, where the need is so great, a means of satisfying it will be found. It will not come about by a complete surrender by either party. And that is another way of saying that there must be a yielding here and there, wherever a position has been clung to because of obstinacy rather than justification.

Affairs in Manchuria have taken another turn, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek moving to that theater for the time being, and thus absenting himself most conspicuously from Nanking negotiations with the Communist chiefs. He quite apparently is convinced that he at last has moved into Manchuria enough military strength to correct the situation whereby Chinese Communists, ignoring their compact, lately seized military control of great stretches of Manchuria originally assigned to Nationalist control. Should this step by Chiang provoke grand scale fighting with the Communists, the threat to any unity program would be obvious. Thus far, it has not. The Communist forces have withdrawn discreetly before the advance of Chiang's reinforced columns, and Chiang seems to be acquiring those strategically important areas of Manchuria which will enable him to negotiate on other matters with more promise of success. If possession is nine points of the law, it is perhaps 9½ parts of a Chinese truce-talk. Meantime General Marshall, in his uneasy job as envoy-arbitrator, continues to exercise a restraint upon excesses by either party, and an encouragement to their renewed performance of certain forgotten pledges.

In Japan, there has been another reminder by George Atcheson, Jr., American chief of the Allied Council, that there must be no such "spontaneous" outbursts as were threatened in an anonymous May Day outcry in Tokyo. This was a protest against "reactionary" interference in Japan; its source was suspect. Mr. Atcheson accordingly stated that America "does not wish to see the Japanese people once more regimented in any kind of totalitarian thought," and that there is no basis for the professed alarms over "reactionary" revivals. It is apparent that foreign pressure for political advantage will continue indefinitely, but it is equally apparent that it makes small headway against General MacArthur's calm and efficient administration of affairs.

President Roxas has been installed in office in Manila, and there now remains only one month before Philippines independence is to take form. An immense amount of rehabilitation still is needed throughout the islands and continuing aid to a young and weak and inexperienced nation is called for. It is most unfortunate that Congress has been so beset by other problems, many of them large but some of them small, that it has not given to legislation in behalf of the Philippines the continued attention which the Philippines need and deserve. Our obligations there remain very large; they are obligations to ourselves, as well as to the Filipinos.

Release of Dental Officers—Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, concerned with hastening the discharge rate of dental officers with long periods of service, has appealed to the War Department Personnel Division to request Selective Service to take action to fill the immediate need for 1,500 dentists. These apparently will come from the dental graduates who were inducted, given governmental assistance in partially completing their education, and then, upon termination of the ASTP program were discharged and deferred from further service to permit completion of dental training at their own expense. After discharge from the Army 4,651 such students actually completed their dental courses. Complaints from dental officers still on active duty have usually been based upon the fact that these former ASTP students are now in private practice while many who left established practices to enter the Army are still awaiting discharge.

In order to meet the minimum requirements of the Army and Navy for dentists, and to establish comparable discharge criteria for both services, the War and Navy Departments have agreed that all dental officers partially or wholly assisted in their education by the Federal Government in the ASTP and V-12 programs and now on active duty upon completion of such education, will for the time being be released upon completion of three years of commissioned active duty service. Navy dentists already separated will not be recalled to active duty. The length of service required for Army dentists now on duty other than ASTP graduates has been reduced from 39 to 36 months effective immediately.

The Navy will shortly make available to the Army approximately 800 dental officers. When this transfer is completed, the period of service required of all dental officers will be further reduced. Before discharge requirements can be reduced to two years for both services, the Army will require additional dental officers. To meet this need, Selective Service has been asked to procure 1,500 young dentists, who are being accepted with the understanding that no more than two years of service will be required from them. Transfers of dental officers from the Army or Navy to the Veterans Administration will not be required.

As to drafting of dentists, it is understood that dentists who are graduates of an approved school will be given direct commissions by the army, while should they not apply but be drafted they must serve in an enlisted status for four months prior to receiving commissions.

Regardless of date of entry on active duty, only a two-year period of service will after 1 July be required of all Army Medical Corps Officers, including graduates of the Army Specialized Training Program except critically needed specialists. A two year period of service will be required for all Navy graduates of the Navy Medical V-12 Training Program, who after 1 March 1946 were or will be ordered to active commissioned duty upon completion of internship. Navy doctors already separated will not be recalled. Under the Army's new two year policy, it is estimated that approximately sixty days after 1 July will be required to complete the release of approximately 3,000 Army doctors affected by the change.

Naval Academy Aviation Course—While the new Department of Aviation will not open its curriculum at the U. S. Naval Academy until next year, Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch, Academy Superintendent, recently announced details of an aviation cruise this summer that in two months will intensify an entire year's air training. It is one of two departures from the Midshipman's usual summer routine. The other will be the amphibious landing planned in collaboration with West Point and the Marine Corps.

For the aviation program, the Academy's second class will be divided in two groups, one of which will study at the Annapolis air facility while the other will embark on the carrier Randolph. The two periods are from 6 July to 9 Aug., and from 24 Aug. to 27 Sept., and will include stops at the Naval Air Station, Quonset, R. I., and at New York for inspection of Navy installations there.

Accompanied by the destroyers Perry and Fisk, the Randolph will operate in the Atlantic, carrying on studies in tactical employment of ships and planes, types of aircraft operations, ship and plane handling, electronic devices, and allied subjects. They will also participate in carrier flights and witness launching, attack, and rendezvous maneuvers. After one half of the class takes this cruise, it will return to relieve the other group at the aviation course at Annapolis.

Signal Corps—The demand for trained radio operators and other Signal Corps specialists throughout the Army has resulted in the continuing expansion of the Enlisted Men's School at Fort Monmouth, N. J. To make full use of the space and equipment which the school now has at its disposal, classes are running on a day and night basis, accommodating many more students in the laboratories, workshops, and classrooms. Originally planned for about five thousand students, changes in the training setup have increased the tentative maximum complement to 7,000 students, whose courses range in length up to six and seven months in duration.

Lt. Col. H. Nelson Moore has been relieved as Director, Legal Division, Office of the Chief Signal Officer, and has been designated Patent Representative for the Chief Signal Officer. Maj. John E. Pernice succeeds him as Director, Legal Division.

During the V-2 rocket tests at White Sands, New Mexico, a special long distance radio teletype set was installed at the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories at Bradley Beach, N. J., to keep Signal Corps technicians in immediate touch with important scientific developments.

The radio set used in this installation is a complete high powered station designed to provide two-way teletype communication by high frequency radio over distances of several thousands of miles. It handles a continuous flow of incoming and outgoing traffic at the same speed as provided by commercial wire circuits, 60 words per minute.

Similar equipment has been used with conspicuous success in two special installations. One such installation was made in the communication car of the President's train by civilian engineers. Two-way teletype communication was provided at all times, whether the train was in motion or at rest. By connecting to the War Department Station WAR in Washington, it was possible to reach similar machines anywhere in the world. The train was at times in communication with Guam; Frankfurt, Germany; and Washington while speeding along at 60 miles per hour. After this installation proved satisfactory, a similar installation was initiated for the President's private transport plane.

"Fleet Week"—With the arrival this week of the forces of Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Eighth Fleet in New York, Mayor O'Dwyer officially proclaimed the period 27 May to 6 June as "Fleet Week." Following a six-weeks' cruise in the South Atlantic that constituted the first simulated war games since before Pearl Harbor, the main group, comprising the Missouri, Midway, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Princeton, arrived 27 May, and a cruiser force completed the return of the Eighth Fleet on 31 May. Visitors will be permitted on most of the ships at periods throughout Fleet Week.

Eight flag officers are in New York from Admiral Mitscher's forces. Besides the Eighth Fleet Commander, there are Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, Commander-in-Chief Atlantic Fleet; Vice Adm. Thomas L. Gatch, Commander Service Force Atlantic Fleet; Rear Adm. John H. Cassady, commander of Carrier Division One; Rear Adm.

Ralph S. Riggs, commander of Cruiser Division 14, Rear Adm. Ernest W. Litch, commander of Carrier Division Four; Rear Adm. Appolo Soucek, commander of Carrier Division 14; and Commo. Arleigh A. Burke, Admiral Mitscher's chief of Staff.

Corps of Chaplains—The Chief of Chaplains, Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Luther D. Miller placed a wreath on the cenotaph at Arlington National Cemetery, on Wednesday, 29 May.

Chaplain (Col.) Walter B. Zimmerman, Officer-in-Charge, Army Ground Forces, attended the Annual Convention of the National Sojourners in Omaha, Neb., on 23, 24 and 25 May. Chaplain Zimmerman is the national chaplain of the Sojourners.

On 13 May at the Jewish Community Center, Washington, D. C., Chaplain (Maj.) Ralph H. Blumenthal, Personnel Division, spoke at the dedication of an Honor Roll of the members of the Washington Jewish Community who served in the Armed Forces.

Recent visitors in the Office of the Chief of Chaplains were: Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Terence P. Finnegan, Chaplain School, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Joseph C. Sides, Headquarters Ninth Air Force, Biggs Field, Tex.; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) William L. Clark, Hq. Third Air Force (TC), Greenville, S. C.; Chaplain (Col.) George J. McMurray, Hq. Fourth Air Force, San Francisco; and Chaplain (Lt Col.) William C. Shure, The Chaplain School, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Post-War Naval Reserve—The Naval Reserve that existed before the World War II will be only a guide for the program now being planned. The basic organization of the Organized Reserve and Volunteer Reserve will continue, but the "new" Reserve will recognize, in addition to the military aspects of war, the complexities of procurement, supply, and technical developments in electronics, engineering, and chemistry.

The pre-war Naval Reserve consisted mainly of weekly drills and two weeks of active duty with pay for the Organized Reserve, during which officers and men took brief cruises, and whatever participation each member of the Volunteer Reserve would take on his own interest. While plans for the new program follow that general pattern, they now contemplate, instead of armory drills, weekly studies in special fields such as communications. A force of reservists capable of taking ships to sea at any time would thus be always available.

Because the war just ended proved the necessity for more than fighting men, the new program also aims to maintain a source of specialists for shore billets, from the type of businessman the Navy called on during the war with experience in industry, finance, or a profession such as law. These men, for the most part, would be unable because of their other responsibilities to take extensive part in Naval Reserve activities, but plans, still in the formative stage, contemplate fitting each man into a job with the Navy for a two-weeks' period with pay if he desires. This group of men would be of the Volunteer Reserve, and, instead of taking two weeks' cruises, would go on active duty in the Navy Department or at a shore base or air station to familiarize themselves with Navy methods and procedures. The SeaBees plan a similar routine—having Civil Engineer Corps officers report to navy yards for two weeks' training.

Congress has thus far evidenced considerable faith in Naval Reserve plans. The basis for reducing the operating fleet to Post War Plan No. 2 seems predicated on plans for 200,000 Organized Reservists and about 65,000 in the Volunteer Reserve. Even in the planning stage at present, the program appears as a tremendous project.

Army Medical Department—Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, announced this week that of 25 Army hospitals earmarked for transfer to the Veterans Administration, 11 have been transferred complete with equipment.

These 11 hospitals, General Kirk said, comprised 24,000 beds while the Medical Department was operating them. Because of lack of sufficient personnel, the Veterans Administration at present is operating them at less than the maximum capacity.

The General Hospitals already released are: Ashburn, McKinney, Tex.; Foster, Jackson, Miss.; LaGarde, New Orleans, La.; Thayer, Nashville, Tenn.; Winter, Topeka, Kans.; Birmingham, Van Nuys, Calif.; Finney, Thomasville, Ga.; McCloskey, Temple, Tex.; McGuire, Richmond, Va.; Nichols, Louisville, Ky.; and Vaughan, Ill.

High praise for the mess halls in the convalescent section of Brooke General Hospital, and at Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver, was given in a report of Army food service activities in the United States made by a civilian investigation committee.

The report states that "exceptional mess installations were noted at the convalescent hospital of Brooke General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, and at Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver, Colo. These might well serve as models in future planning."

Newport Torpedo Station—Through the leadership of Representative Aime J. Forand in behalf of his home city of Newport, R. I., the Navy's shift of torpedo-manufacturing activities from Newport to Forest Park, Ill., has been halted, at least for a year. The 75-year-old torpedo station will be maintained, by law, as the main producer of torpedoes for the Navy.

Although a partial withdrawal from Newport had been contemplated for some time, the fight in behalf of Newporters who work at the station came to an end on 23 May when the House began consideration of the 1947 Navy Appropriations Bill. The Navy had announced last December that it planned to maintain Newport as a center for research and development of torpedoes, to produce 25 annually, but that a war plant at Forest Park would soon begin to turn out 100 torpedoes as a test of its machine-tool efficiency. As a result of the curtailment of activities at Newport, where a peak of 13,000 were employed during the war, only 1,100 are now working and several thousand native Newporters for whom the torpedo station was necessary before are now out of work, while about 1,500 are planned for the new Forest Park plant.

This "human element" was the main consideration on which Representative Forand based his demand that the Navy not abandon Newport. The men who have been put out of work, he told the House, were around 50 to 55 years of age, not eligible for civil service retirement or old-age unemployment pay. His argument received some criticism for his efforts of a single community, but the House voted to accept the amendment he proposed, preventing the Bureau of Ordnance from spending any of its $246,390,000 allowance for "overhaul, repair or assembly at Forest Park, Ill." The amendment is included in the Navy Appropriations Bill for 1947, and therefore will be effective through 30 June 1947.

Bureau of Yards and Docks—The Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks urgently needs civilian personnel, both male and female, in connection with an extensive program of building and maintenance in Alaska and the Marianas Island area of the Pacific.

In addition to civilians, present Navy personnel who might wish to go to the Pacific area, or whose present positions might be endangered by possible reduction of staff in their stations are invited to apply.

Skilled artisans and supervisors, as well as clerical, professional and sub-professional men are required in the area of the Marianas Islands, while in Alaska there is a critical need for artisans and mechanics.

Both men and women are needed to fill 102 positions with the Land and Claim Commission in Guam. This group includes attorneys, land acquisition specialists, survey men, land appraisers, law clerks, stenographers, and clerk typists. These positions are open only to single men and women because of lack of suitable quarters for couples. The minimum age requirement for women is 21. All of these positions require the signing of one year contracts at basic salaries ranging from $2,130 to $6,475 per year.

Finance Department—The Administrative Division and the Coordination and Reports Branch, Office of the Chief of Finance, have been abolished and in their stead the Officer Assignment Branch and the Administrative Management Division established. Col. E. O. Lee was designated Chief of the Officer Assignment Branch, and his organization assumed the functions and duties of the former Military Personnel Branch, Administrative Division. Other assignments of the Administrative Division and the functions of the Coordination and Reports Branch were transferred to the Administrative Management Division under Col. E. J. Bean.

Maj. Gen. W. H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, and Col. J. B. Haley, Chief, Audit Division, Office of the Chief of Finance returned on 20 May from an inspection trip of finance installations on the West Coast.

Col. L. H. Sims, Director of the Office of Dependency Benefits, Newark, N. J., attended meetings in the Office of the Chief of Finance held in connection with personnel matters of the Office of Dependency Benefits.

Capt. A. E. Barbour of the Property Accounting and Audit Branch, Audit Division, OCF, attended a conference at Ft. Knox, Ky., for the purpose of reviewing the Report of Survey system in collaboration with representatives of the Army Ground Forces.

Navy Medical Activities—Designed to inspire and improve all phases of the medical service, the newly-formed Navy Medical Department Society of Pearl Harbor today looks forward to broadening clinical backgrounds. Regular monthly meetings, which feature prominent guest speakers, bring together 150 members representing all corps of the medical department of the Regular Navy and the Naval Reserve, as well as civilians in professions associated with the care of the sick.

Capt. R. W. Taylor, (DC), USN, lectured to the group recently on "Fractures of the Mandible."

Officers serving the society at present are Capt. T. F. Weinert, (MC), USN, president; Capt. R. W. Taylor, (DC), USN, vice-president; Lt. Comdr. M. E. Gresco, (NC), USN, secretary; and Lt. Comdr. M. E. Zimmerman, (HC), USN, treasurer.

Regular Navy Medical Officers—The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery has announced four courses for which applications are desired from Regular Navy Medical Officers, in Alnavs 260 and 261. One course, a 12-month residency-type training in anesthesia, dermatology, internal medicine, obstetrics, orthopedic surgery, pathology, psychiatry and radiology, requires completion of one sea cruise and eligibility for two years' shore duty. The other courses are in physical medicine, medical statistics, and preventive medicine, for which no previous experience is necessary.

National Guard—The New Jersey National Guard achieved a record of distinguished service during World War II, adding to the honors won by guardsmen dating back to Civil War Days, Brig. Gen. James I. Bowers, Adjutant General of New Jersey declared this week. Over 2,000 citations for gallantry in action were awarded to men of the 44th Division. Hundreds of citations were awarded to officers and enlisted men of the 102d Cavalry, 112th Field Artillery and 122d Antiaircraft Artillery Gun Battalion for exploits in the invasion of France, and on the battlefronts of Africa, Italy, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany and other sectors in the European Theater.

Three officers—Brig. Gen. Frederick W. Castle, 1st Lt. Frank Burke, and 1st Lt. Carlton R. Rouh, began their military career in the New Jersey National Guard, enlisting as privates, and went on to win the highest award of the nation—the Medal of Honor.

Navy Personnel—From the surrender of Japan through 20 May, there were a total of 223,602 first enlistments in the Regular Navy, changes to USN from USNR and USN-I status, re-enlistments and extensions. For the period 11-20 May there were 3,415 first enlistments in the Regular Navy at recruiting stations, 528 first enlistments outside the United States, 415 changeovers from USNR and USN-I, and 688 re-enlistments and extensions. During the period 12 May through 18 May the Navy returned 60,061 persons to civilian life, making a total of 2,387,257 since 17 August 1945.

Financial Digest

The nation-wide rail strike ended 25 May, 48 hours after being called, as President Truman spoke to a joint session of Congress asking temporary emergency powers to break strikes against the Government, including drafting of strikers.

The House, within two hours after hearing the President's recommendations, passed by a vote of 306 to 13 and sent to the Senate an emergency measure designed to curb strikes against the Government in essential industries. Opposition in the Senate, however, checked passage.

The Case strike control bill, passed by a House vote of 230 to 106, went to the White House 29 May.

The soft coal strike was ended 29 May, with the Government granting new contract concessions which will cost approximately $200 million annually. Anthracite miners struck 31 May as a conference between operators and the American Federation of Labor union failed to reach a settlement.

The Federal Reserve Board this week reported that in April and the first half of May commodity prices advanced and dollar value of retail trades remained at record levels. Industrial production, however, was cut by the coal strike. The seasonally adjusted index of production prepared by the board, which takes the 1935-39 average as 100, declined two per cent in April and stood at 164 on 1 May. Substantial increases in activity in the automobile and electrical machinery industries which followed the settlement of wage disputes in March offset in part the curtailment in operation in some industries resulting from the drop in coal output.

According to the Department of Commerce, cash and securities in the hands of business and individuals at the end of the war reached record levels. The Department listed $25 billion in currency, $75 billion in demand deposits, $50 billion in time deposits, and $100 billion in Government securities. The Department said that once reconversion is completed this reserve should prove beneficial in exerting a downward pressure on long term interest rates and otherwise aiding in the establishment of a full-production, full-employment economy.

The major part of the increase in domestic merchandise from $651 million in the month of February to $788 million in March is largely accounted for by increased shipments of machinery and other finished manufactures, the Census Bureau reports. Over half of the $67 million rise in March imports is represented by increased imports of sugar, unmanufactured wool, coffee and diamonds. The greatest single rise was a $13 million increase in sugar imports. Half of the March exports were finished manufactures, amounting to $396 million, or $89 million more than in February.

Merchant Marine

Vice Admiral William Ward Smith, USN, this week took his place on the Maritime Commission succeeding the wartime Chairman, Vice Admiral Emory S. Land, who recently resigned. Admiral Smith's nomination was confirmed by the Senate on 24 May.

As the only military member now on the Commission, Admiral Smith presumably will be designated Chairman by President Truman. Captain Edward McCauley, acting chairman since Admiral Land's resignation, resigned two weeks ago. Mr. Raymond McKeough was named "temporary chairman" on 17 May.

The unexpired six-year term for which Admiral Smith was appointed will expire 16 April 1947.

Admiral Smith was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1908, and won the Class of 1871 Sword for Excellence in Practical and Theoretical Ordnance and Gunnery. When World War II began, he was Chief of Staff and Aide to CincPac, and on 8 Jan. 1942 was appointed Rear Admiral. Successively, during the war, he commanded cruiser task forces until the fall of '42; was Director of the Naval Transportation Service under CNO until the spring of '45, and, with the rank of Vice Admiral, was Commander Service Force, Pacific Fleet.

President Truman announced at a press conference 17 May that Admiral Earle Mills would not be named for a Maritime Commission post because of his party affiliations. Admiral Mills was considered ineligible because he is a Democrat, and that party's allowance on the Commission is filled.

The name of Captain Granville Conway, acting Administrator of the War Shipping Administration, was sent to the Senate for confirmation, but is expected to receive no action because of the termination of the WSA on 1 July.

Maritime Day

Tribute to the war record of merchant seamen was paid by General A. A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps Commandant, in a letter to Captain Conway, marking Maritime Day. Gen. Vandegrift, who commanded the First Marine Division on Guadalcanal, wrote:

"On those distant Pacific Islands where the Marines fought, the men and ships of the merchant fleet constituted a vital link in the chain of supply . . . on National Maritime Day we of the Marine Corps take pleasure in congratulating your organization on a job well done."

Awards

The Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal was presented to two seamen during April, and Meritorious Service Medals went to 18 members of the merchant marine, it has been announced.

Capt. A. W. Opheim, USMS, was presented the DSM at the time the Gallant Ship Plaque was placed aboard the ship which he commanded, the SS Marcus Daly, for services rendered off Leyte. Allen Gilbert Collins was awarded the DSM posthumously for heroic actions while serving as Third Mate on the SS

John Bascom, for assistance in rescue following an ammunition explosion at Barl, Italy.

attack the gasoline tank exploded, the bomber crashed, carrying General Castle to his

Gen. Eisenhower Praises Troops

In a letter to the commanding general of the First Cavalry Division, General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, congratulated the Division for its appearance during its parade 12 May in the course of his stay in Japan.

The text of the letter follows:

"My dear General Bradford:

"The magnificent appearance of your troops this morning has made a tremendous impression upon me. In all of my visits during the past four years, I have seen no troops who have presented a more inspiring sight. I was very proud to view such a display of military perfection.

"Please extend to all of the officers and men of the 1st Cavalry Division my sincere appreciation for the honor done me and pass on to them my congratulations for a job well done.

"My warmest personal regards. Sincerely,

"Dwight D. Eisenhower"

Following is a statement by General Eisenhower on his departure from Manila during his tour of Pacific installations:

"To all troops in the AFWESPAC Area: I want to command you for the efficient manner and high spirit with which you are tackling the important job of winding up wartime activities here.

"You know as well as I that much remains to be done in the preservation and disposal of our large and valuable stock of supplies and equipment to protect the interests of our taxpayers.

"I regret that time did not permit me to visit all units and installations, or to see all my old friends. I have asked Gen. Styer to extend to all in his command my commendation for their efficient service, and my appreciation for a very pleasant visit."

In Korea General Eisenhower spoke to the American Forces as follows:

"I am truly sorry that I could not meet and talk to every American soldier in Korea. I came to the Pacific in order to see the GI's, what he was doing, how he was getting along and to bring him the assurance that the War Department is still interested in him, his welfare and the job he is doing. Because my time is so short here in Korea, I have no time at all except to stop briefly with General Hodges in Seoul. So I asked him to let me use this radio so that I could bring to you each at least a message of thanks—of thanks for what you did in the war and thanks for what you are doing now. Because what you are doing is terribly important. We are trying to secure the peace that the guns won for us last year. Unless we do our job well here, in Japan, in Germany, and all the bases in the Pacific, some day our kids will have to do this all over again. This is what we are trying to stop. And if we do our job well now, that will be how it will come out. You people are doing a very important part of it. Thanks a lot—Good-bye and good luck."

Doolittle Report

able or unfavorable attitude toward their officers ranged from as high as 90 per cent favorable to as low as 10 per cent favorable, the report states. Only one out of four men stated that in general their officers were of poor quality and that much better officers could have been selected. These findings indicate, the report says, that there is no over-all tendency on the part of enlisted personnel to criticize all officers indiscriminately. Specific comments about officer-enlisted man relationships may be broken down into three categories: Leadership practices, rank and privilege, and informal officer-enlisted man relations.

The report says that while only a minority of officers agree with enlisted personnel on the advisability of closer relationship between commissioned and enlisted personnel, the minority is surprisingly large—30 per cent.

The Office of the Inspector General was criticised by witnesses appearing before the board as being ineffectual and insufficiently manned; that it accomplished nothing once complaints were heard and was stymied in action by organizational control.

No witness maintained that there should not be discipline and strict obedience to orders. Each agreed that there should be levels of authority up the scale of responsibilities, and that some methods and means should be provided for those in responsible positions to more effectively carry out their duties. For example, everyone agreed that with greater responsibility and authority should go greater remuneration.

Noted by the board were steps already taken by the War Department tending to solve problems that grew out of officer-enlisted men relationships during the war. These included the appointment of a Discharge Review Board; a directive to all theatres and major forces emphasizing that adequate recreational facilities be provided enlisted personnel; instructions contained in War Department Circular 74, which enables both enlisted and commissioned personnel to present grievances to The Inspector General not less frequently than once a month; establishment of a War Department Advisory Committee on Military Justice; instructions in War Department Circular 88, prescribing that effective 30 June, 1948, there will be similarity in uniform for commissioned and enlisted personnel; the plan for integration of officers in the Regular Army; and recent regulations establishing a system of granting leave to and recording furlough time of enlisted personnel similar to the procedure for commissioned personnel.

Following is the text of the board's conclusions and recommendations:

CONCLUSIONS

This Board has arrived unanimously at the following conclusions:

1. The rapid expansion of the Army, from an establishment of 198,335 in September 1939 to 8,201,336 in May 1945, created an unprecedented personnel problem. When due consideration is given to all difficulties experienced in preparing for war in a democracy, it becomes obvious that the Army did a truly magnificent job in this second World War.

2. A comparison of the aftermath of World War II with similar periods following other wars, in which this country was involved, indicates that the present reaction against the military organization is not unique and has occurred in varying degrees despite the fact that we emerged victorious.

3. Because of the distaste of citizens in our democracy for a regimented life in which an individual to some extent loses his identity, and because the majority who served were conscripted or drafted—many against their will, much of the general criticism could be expected.

4. Americans look with disfavor upon any system which grants unearned privileges to a particular class of individuals and find distasteful any tendency to make arbitrary social distinctions between two parts of the Army.

5. There were irregularities, injustices in handling of enlisted personnel, and abuses of privileges in the recent war to such an extent as to cause wide-spread and deep-seated criticisms.

6. The causes of poor relationships between commissioned and enlisted personnel are traceable, in general, to two main factors:

a. Undeniably poor leadership on the part of a small percentage of those in positions of responsibility;

b. A system that permits and encourages a wide official and social gap between commissioned and enlisted personnel.

7. In most instances poor leadership resulted from the thrusting into positions of authority men who were inherently unqualified or were inadequately trained as leaders. This was brought about by the rapid expansion of the officer corps called for by the national emergency. There were errors in selection. Orientation and indoctrination were inadequate. Training was abbreviated. All of this resulted in failure to emphasize the importance of morale, efficient personnel management, and responsibilities. In the training, the Army was limited to emphasizing technical proficiency. The exigencies of time did not allow the Army to develop fully among commissioned personnel a more liberal understanding of responsibility to their troops. In selecting officers the Army was forced to rely upon the character, background, and leadership which they demonstrated while in the processes of training.

8. The peace-time Army did not adequately prepare officers for the war-time job of handling civilian soldiers; it did not offer a code of officer-enlisted man conduct flexible enough for application to an Army in which the bulk of the men in all ranks were civilian.

9. The official gap between commissioned and enlisted personnel was widened during the war by untrained and unqualified officers who carried distinctions into the social life. This was to a large extent due to faulty interpretation of the customs and traditions of the regular officer corps in a peace-time Army.

10. It is extremely difficult under existing procedures to get rid of incompetents and undesirables among the officer group.

11. There is a need for a new philosophy in the military order, a policy of treatment of men, especially in the "ranks," in terms of advanced concepts in social thinking. The present system does not permit full recognition of the dignity of man. More definite protection from the arbitrary acts of superiors is essential.

12. Under the present system enlisted personnel are dependent for the satisfaction of many of their needs upon the behavior and attitudes of their officers, but are denied a feeling of security and opportunities for development and self-realization. Despite the procedures established for this purpose, enlisted personnel and junior officers have actually not enjoyed complete freedom in presenting their grievances. One of the most lacking yet important phases of the military structure is an alert and effective internal policing service and an agency providing a practical means of redress.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The Board has kept constantly in mind in weighing evidence, coming to conclusions, and in preparing its recommendations, the following:

1. There must be assurance that we, as a nation, have a modern, economical, efficient, and effective military establishment which can, if needed, win battles and a war.

2. Maintenance of control and discipline, which are essential to the success of any military organization.

3. Maintenance of morale which must be of the highest order and under continual scrutiny.

4. That the people returning from combat duty or service in the military establishment, return in the best possible physical, mental, moral, and spiritual condition.

5. That conditions be such as to create in the mind of the soldier a favorable impression of the military service and the government.

6. Improvement of the character, the knowledge, and the competency of those who have been and those who are in the service or plan to become members of the Army.

7. Assurance of ready availability of all elements of a military establishment in case of an emergency.

8. Assurance of ready expansion of a citizens' Army in case of a national emergency. The Board therefore strongly recommends

1. That steps be taken to improve leadership in the officer corps of the Army in order that the corps will merit the respect of soldiers and civilians alike. That this be accomplished by: (1) better selection, (2) more adequate orientation and indoctrination, (3) effective training, (4) proper assignments, (5) promotion on basis of merit, (6) employment of rigorous method of screening and selecting out of incompetents and undesirables, (7) a more effective internal policing system to prevent abuses of privileges other than those facilities and means which enable an officer to do a job more effectively. The following specific actions be inaugurated:

a. Selection

That selection of men for positions of responsibility, up the scale, be based upon the most advanced practices in personnel selection found in industry, business, government, and those developed in the Army. Some of the criteria should be:

(1) Previous military training, preferably one year in the enlisted ranks, exceptions to be established in cases of outstanding individuals, especially technicians, who, unless they qualify, should not be placed in command positions.

(2) Character, with emphasis on interest in and potential ability to work with and manage people.

b. Orientation and indoctrination

That sufficient time be expended in order to inculcate thoroughly:

(1) A sound appreciation of responsibilities, and especially to subordinates.

(2) The intelligent use of authority.

(3) The idea that privileges which accompany rank and responsibility are established to better enable an individual to perform his duties effectively and efficiently and are not for the purpose of improving his own personal interest.

(4) An appreciation of the military service and its mission.

c. Training

That, in addition to the training in technical subjects, each candidate, whether at West Point, an ROTC unit, or Officer Candidate School, receive much more comprehensive instruction in command responsibility, personnel management, and human relations.

d. Assignment

That assignments to positions of responsibility be made on the basis of ability and training of the individual, thus enabling the Army to utilize talents where required.

e. Promotion and/or demotion

That a complete review be made of the system of promotion, and that a promotion system on a merit basis be established*, making it possible to permit especially competent individuals to be advanced ahead of any seniority average; that some system of demotion be established whereby, after a trial period, if an individual does not meet the requirements and demonstrates that he is incapable of assuming certain responsibilities and performing certain duties, he will be demoted. Lack of promotion or demotion must not be the basis for any stigmatization.

f. Dismissal

That, in addition to a merit system for promotion, there be established a system whereby by greater facility in eliminating the incompetent personnel and the "undesirables" is possible, thus enabling the Army to dismiss an individual when found not suitable for a job, incompetent or unable to manifest the required leadership qualities. Such a procedure will eliminate unnecessary retention in the service, indiscriminate transfers, and other existing methods of dealing with incompetence. Demotion to a level where competence is obtained may be preferable to actual dismissal.

g. Retirement

That there be established a retirement system whereby, for shorter periods of service, 10, 20, and 30 years, individuals will have the privilege of retiring and be assured some security for having spent a part of their life in the Army; that, in addition, there be a regulation which provides for approval of requests for retirement at any time, thus making it relatively easier to retire; that this system be made applicable to enlisted personnel as well as to the commissioned. This recommendation is made in part because the Army of the future should be one of young men who, in general, are better able to cope with new and scientific concepts; that the retention of older men should be only on the basis of proven capacity to accept new ideas (lack of open-mindedness of some senior officers in the past created difficulties), and with the thought in mind of making it easier for the Army to rid itself of incompetents.

h. Disability retirement

That an equitable system for commissioned and enlisted personnel be established.

2. That steps be taken to provide all military personnel with a sense of security, substantial compensation for duty and responsibility from bottom to top, equitable distribution of allowances, and assurance of a chance for advancement. It is recommended that the following specific actions be inaugurated:

a. Base pay

That the present system or schedule of base pay be reviewed from bottom to top and that the War Department establish a rate of pay which will take into consideration the increased rates of pay in industry and business in order that the Army may draw equitably from all levels of the civilian manpower reservoir. This will tend to insure the security and dignity of all Army personnel, eliminating many of the inequities which now exist.

b. Allowances

That allowances be furnished to all levels, from bottom to top, including all enlisted and commissioned personnel, on a sliding scale basis. The following should be considered in the establishment of a new table of allowances:

(1) Food

That food, wherever obtained by Government purchase, be distributed equitably to all grades and ranks, providing identical privileges for augmentation if desired; that efforts be made to assure similarity in preparation and service.

(2) Quarters

That, in the peace-time Army if quarters are to be provided on posts, camps, stations, or bases, consideration be given to family size as well as to rating or rank of individuals; that, if quarters are not to be (or cannot be) provided on military installations,

* Any system based wholly on seniority stifles initiative and weakens the calibre of the officer corps. It is realized that a great deal more supervision on the part of commanders is going to be required under a merit system in order that promotion and/or demotion may be accomplished intelligently; and it is recommended that it will be necessary to assure freedom from individual prejudices, favoritism, and political pressure.

civilian costs as well as family size and rank be considered in granting monetary allowances in lieu of quarters.

(3) Clothing and uniform

That clothing and uniforms be issued to all military personnel, whether enlisted or commissioned. The Board, however, sees no objection to personal purchase, by any military personnel, of clothing and uniform in addition to that issued, provided that whatever is purchased conforms in texture and cut.

(4) Travel

That travel allowances for the individual and for his dependents be apportioned without discrimination in terms of rank, and be made equitable for both enlisted and commissioned personnel.

3. That enlisted personnel be enabled to accumulate leave or furlough time and be granted terminal leave pay on the same basis as is now provided for commissioned personnel; that the War Department support the legislation required to make this possible, thus eliminating the termination injustices, including mustering-out pay, which now exist.

4. That all military personnel be allowed, when off duty, to pursue normal social patterns comparable to our democratic way of life.

5. That the use of discriminatory references, such as "officers and their ladies; enlisted men and their wives," be eliminated from directives and publications issued in military establishments.

6. That there be definite equality of treatment of both enlisted and commissioned personnel in the administration of military justice, making all equally liable under military law for errors and faults; that the higher the rank the more severe be the punishment; that there be a review of all cases where wartime operations necessitated very strict handling, in order that there be due reconsideration and clemency bestowed where warranted; that enlisted personnel be permitted on courts, but that every member of a court be senior to the accused.

7. That the hand salute be abandoned off Army installations and off duty, except in occupied territories and under conditions where the procedure might be deemed necessary to properly convey military dignity to local populations, but be employed in all official greetings in the line of duty and continue to be manifest at ceremonial occasions and when the national anthem is played or the colors pass.

8. That steps be taken to establish a system of decorations and awards which will provide for a more equitable distribution on the basis of merit and prohibit distribution to a degree that will tend to cheapen them; that it be made more difficult to obtain an award the higher an individual goes in the scale from the bottom of the enlisted to the top of the commissioned ranks.

9. That the system for registering complaints be improved and that inspections be for the purpose of prevention as well as investigation. This will call for augmentation and possibly reorganization of the Inspector General's Section. The following is necessary:

a. Staff of inspectors general must be composed of carefully selected, highly competent individuals, whose experience particularly qualifies them for such assignment;

b. Staff of inspectors general must be increased to the extent necessary to permit it to function properly;

c. Continued study must be made of abuses with the objective of eliminating the causes;

d. Copies of reports of inspectors general must be transmitted to the War Department outside regular command channels. In addition to normal procedures, in order to eliminate political aspects of control and to insure remedial action.

10. That all regulations and instructions be so written that they not only stipulate the limited "privileges" which are essential to the performance of duties in positions of responsibility but also will be regulatory in that they will prohibit or minimize possible abuses of authority and the prestige that goes with higher rank and responsibility.

11. The abolishment of all statutes, regulations, customs, and traditions which discourage or forbid social association of soldiers of similar likes and tastes, because of military rank.

12. That necessary steps be taken to eliminate the terms and concepts, "enlisted men" and "officer," that suitable substitutes be employed (e. g., members of non-commissioned corps, members of commissioned corps, etc.), and that all military personnel be referred to as "soldiers."

13. That close contact and association with civilians be encouraged and maintained since a citizens' Army is a result of combined interest, effort, and contribution of both military and public. A mutual exchange of information will enhance the military organization. Length of military service seems to automatically divorce military personnel from civilian outlook. A maximum of military personnel living in civilian communities, rather than on Army posts, will assist in accomplishing this.

14. That further study be made of accumulated materials on the subject under consideration by the Board for the purpose of extracting additional ideas which may be worthy of acceptance.
